Education By the Numbers

The UBC Faculty of Medicine is training more medical and health professionals than ever before, helping to transform health for everyone by exposing students to the rich diversity of patients and communities across British Columbia.

Delivering Province-wide Training

During the past two decades, the Faculty of Medicine and its partners have transformed the education landscape in B.C. by developing an innovative model of training that exposes students to urban, rural and northern communities and diverse patient populations across the province.

Every day 4,500+ students are learning in more than 80 communities across B.C.
